Wolf Creek National Fish Hatchery Workshop Series

Wolf Creek National Fish Hatchery is proud to sponsor educational workshops that help our community learn more about our incredible natural heritage. For information on other programs at the hatchery, or how you can be involved as a volunteer, please contact us!

WHAT:

All About WILD: Project WILD, Project Flying WILD and Growing Up Wild

This class is open to anyone looking to gain experience in the area of environmental education. A fun-filled day of hands on learning, it is a great training opportunity for teachers, Girl/Boy Scout leaders, 4-H volunteers, etc. Teachers in attendance will gain 8 hours of professional development and also program guidance in core content areas and national standards.

Project WILD, part of the Council for Environmental Education (CEE) curriculum offerings, is one of the most widely-used conservation and environmental education programs among educators of students in kindergarten through high school. It is based on the premise that young people and educators have a vital interest in learning about our natural world. Flying WILD, also a program of the Council for Environmental Education, introduces students to bird conservation through standards-based classroom activities and environmental stewardship projects. Growing Up WILD is an early childhood education program that builds on children's sense of wonder about nature and invites them to explore wildlife and the world around them. Through a wide range of activities and experiences, Growing Up WILD provides an early foundation for developing positive impressions about the natural world and lifelong social and academic skills.
